Poison Safety

- Poisoning is one of the most common childhood injuries. Most accidental poisonings happen to children younger than five years old, with children aged one to three years most at risk.
- Medications are the most common cause of childhood poisonings and nearly all childhood poisonings take place at home.

How Can You Prevent Poisoning?

- Closely supervise children around the home.
- When giving medicine to children, always follow the instructions on the label.
- Buy products in child resistant containers, but remember that the lids are not completely childproof – a curious and determined child may eventually open these containers.
 - Always make sure that the child resistant lid is on properly after each use.
- Store all poisons, including medicines, cleaning products and chemicals in their original containers that are clearly labeled.
- Place containers in an area that is out of children's reach.
 - Return poisons to their safe storage area immediately after use. Do not leave them out.
- Take any unwanted or out-of-date medicines to your local pharmacy so they can throw them away.
- Save the contact information for the Poison Control Center in your phone, 800-222-1222
